BRITISH ELECTIONS DUE BEFORE CHRISTMAS DAY

Premier Asquith Has Conference With King George—England in Another Political Crisis

London, Nov. 14.—An immediate general election is in prospect in Great Britain. Parliament will be dissolved November 29th latest reports have it, so that all the elections will be over before Christmas.

When Premier Asquith returned from his visit to King George at Sandringham, his election agent from Fifehire was awaiting him at his official residence on Downing Street. This is taken as a sure sign that a general election will be held very soon. The long conference of the party leaders having failed to agree on the lord's veto power, Premier Asquith called on the King Friday. The premier's purpose was to learn whether the Liberals, if they are returned to power at the coming election, can rely on the royal prerogative to make as many peers as are needed to create a Liberal majority in the House of Lords.

It is assumed that the King gave his assent, otherwise Asquith would resign and Mr. Balfour could not meet parliament, a deadlock would ensue. This would cause great financial loss to the country because the ministers have decided to leave the budget uncompleted until the new parliament assembles. An unpassed budget is the worst which Asquith holds and the more powerfully and remorselessly he uses it the more his party will approve.

Lord Walgrave, the unionist whip in the House of Lords, declared that the lords cannot be rushed into considering the government's veto resolutions, that a general election must await their pleasure and that unionist peers have a counter plan to propose which requires prolonged discussion. But the ministers will not tolerate any dilatory tactics and should the lords attempt them, the crisis will be cut short by parliament's dissolution.

Queenstown, Nov. 14.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish party, and T. P. O'Connor, his lieutenant, have returned from America, where they have been touring in the Irish cause. Redmond's importance as a factor in the impending struggle is everywhere recognized. O'Connor prophesies battle, and picks the Liberals to win. At the worst, he says, the government will be returned "with about the same majority as it has now."

MRS. VANDERHOUTEN IS GIVEN ALIMONY BY JUSTICE STEWART

Woman Who Accused Husband of Ill-treating Her, Wins Case—Children Told Stories of Harrowing Cruelty.

The supreme court resumed its sittings this morning on the Vanderhouten case for alimony. Mr. John McCormack, counsel for the plaintiff, asked leave to call Gabrielle to complete her evidence begun on Saturday. Judge Stuart, however, intervened before any evidence was taken in order to suggest a settlement. "I can't see the purpose of dragging this trial out," said His Lordship. "There are still twenty-one witnesses to be heard."

"Well, my lord," said Mr. Robertson, "I beg the privilege of calling as many witnesses as my learned friend. My client's character is seriously affected. The evidence on Saturday was published in the evening papers, I think unfairly."

"Well, there's only one point that on which further evidence might be taken and if I am satisfied on that then the case is over. That is the occasion when the girl alleged he beat her with a whip."

"Well, that's the very point on which I wish to bring evidence," said Mr. Robertson. Mr. Vanderhouten was called to give evidence to clear his character. On examination by Mr. Robertson he denied practically all the atrocities charged to him on Saturday. Only on one point did he agree with Mrs. Vanderhouten that on one occasion on provocation he picked up a cup of tea and threw it at her. His denials were multiplied to nearly every detail and his Lordship interrupted with an exclamation of impatience, "If either of

NOTED SCIENTIST HERE FROM NORTH

Professor Edward Preble, Head of United States Biological Survey, Completes Long Trip.

Professor Edward A. Preble, head of the United States Biological Survey of Washington, is in this city, guest at the Alberta Hotel, after spending several months in the northern regions, being the first naturalist to explore the country through which he and his party traversed.

Professor Preble is considered one of the foremost of American naturalists, and he is highly regarded, even by the Indians, who greatly admire his expert use of the rifle and great skill in the handling of canoes and as a snowshoer.

Professor Preble's trip was made officially, and he and his party collected many specimens of animal life.

This is the third visit Professor Preble has made to this country and he has now explored the whole of the northern country from Hudson Bay to the Pacific Ocean, including the barren lands, which he visited in 1909.

In an interview with the Capital this morning, Professor Preble gave the following version of his trip.

traveled by small boats to Telegraph Creek, where we took more supplies, including horses. We left Telegraph Creek about July 24th and went south east along the Indian and Ashcroft trails to Klappan mountain, located at the head of the Klappan river, one of the branches of the Stikine. At that point Sam Muter, one of our party, turned back with part of the horses, and the Indian guide to Telegraph Creek, making side trips on the river, on which he did considerable shooting and collected specimens. The remainder of the party, including myself, left Klappan on the 10th of August and started southwest to the High mountain in which rises the Stikine Skeena, and Findlay rivers. Most of this country is about 4000 feet above the sea level and there are very large areas of timber there. The party saw a great number of caribou, mountain sheep, black bears, and moose and collected specimens of those acceptable. Besides the big, large animals we obtained many specimens of small

TOLSTOI GONE

St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—The attempted suicide of Countess Tolstoy on Saturday is explained by the following telegram received by the Novosibirsk from Tula, and signed by Prince Dmitri Obolenski:

"Count Leo Tolstoy left Yasnaya Polyana on the morning of October 1st accompanied by a physician and neither has been heard from since. The countess is in despair. In a letter to his wife Tolstoy says he has decided to spend his remaining days in solitary retirement."

BRINGS SUIT FOR $50,000

J. J. Denman is Suing the Clover Bar Coal Company for That Amount.

J. J. Denman of Edmonton, has taken action against the Clover Bar Coal company for $50,000 and the case will come up on Wednesday next in the Supreme court.

Mr. Denman was for sometime a large shareholder and director of the Clover Bar Coal company, and at the same time general manager. He severed his connection with the company and has taken action against them in regard to certain interests of his in the company.

The case will be a long and difficult one. It was set down for the October sittings but had to be postponed because certain material evidence was lacking.

Evidence was taken in British Columbia by a commission and several former officials of the company will be present from a considerable distance.

FOUR YEARS IN PRISON DRUNKEN SIGNALMAN

Frank Leland, Young C.P.R. Employee, Sent to Jail for Negligence.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—Frank Leland, a young single man employed by the C.P.R., who derailed a passenger train near here, yesterday, after killing fireman Senyon Patterson, was sentenced to four years in "Stoney Mountain" by Justice Howland. He is the son of a well-known farmer, and at the time of the disaster and an effort was made to work up sympathy for him on that account.

A STEP TOWARD GLORY

The Conservatives Have Elected a Leader, But it's a Long Climb Yet.

INVESTIGATION PROVES ALIX STORY OF BELLE ELMORE FAKE

Everybody There Denies All Knowledge of the Affair and Man Who Sent Press Despatches is Unknown.

Alix, Alta., Nov. 14.—There is absolutely no truth in the story that Belle Elmore Crippen is in hiding here or in the vicinity. Your special correspondent arrived on the ground today and made exhaustive enquiries resulting in a denial from every source of alleged information.

Constable Nelson, R.N.W.M.P., denied all knowledge of the story and it is also denied by the proprietors of the two local hotels and Editor Frederick of the Alix Press.

Telegraph operator Hall is unable to say who filed the despatch giving credence and substantiation to the story. Proprietors of the livery stables say they know nothing of the part of the story relating to the hiring of a livery rig by the supposed Belle Elmore and emphatically deny any transaction with any woman during the past week.

There is absolutely no truth in the story and it is believed to be a practical joke perpetrated upon Editor Frederick of the Alix Free Press. Messages sent out bear the signature of "Hedrick." There is no one in town by that name.

ENGINEERING DISTRICT HERE

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—The public works department has established a new engineering district at Edmonton. F. G. Goodspeed, formerly of St. John, N. B., will be the engineer in charge.

FIFTY-TWO BILLS AWAITING CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE

Debate on the Speech From the Throne Will Occupy Most of This Afternoon's Proceedings.

The members of the legislature, many of whom returned to their homes following the formal opening of the house on Thursday, have again congregated in the city. The debate on the speech from the throne will occupy the house for at least to-day and to-morrow it is expected that the legislature will settle down to business—unless something untoward enters to disturb the equanimity of the house.

Charles Stewart of Selkirk will move the reply and A. J. McArthur, of Gleichen, will second the motion, followed by E. E. Michener, of Red Deer, the leader-elect of the Conservative party. Premier Sifton will next deliver a speech on the subject and it is expected that R. D. Bennett will have something to say. Other speeches will then follow in which Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of Agriculture may figure.

This morning the committee to select standing committees met in the premier's office, when the committees for the revision were framed. The report will be presented to the legislature this afternoon.

So far fifty-two bills figure in the agenda for the session, but only fifteen of which are new bills, all of which are private. The remaining bills—both government and private—were left over from last session. The new government measures have not been announced yet. To obtain a place in the agenda notice of private bills must be made prior to December first.

WANTED TO HANG IN CRIPPEN'S STEAD

London, Nov. 14.—An elderly, unidentified man appeared at the Cambridge Police Court today, and requested that he be allowed to hang in place of Dr. Crippen, arguing that the professional skill of the latter would prove a blessing to humanity, whereas he himself was of no value to the world. The man displayed eccentricities, and his sanity will probably be investigated.

RED DEER MAN FOR DISTRICT COURT?

Rumor Has It That J. L. Crawford Will Receive Appointment to Bench

Red Deer, Nov. 14.—A rumor which is going the rounds, and which is practically an assured fact, is to the effect that J. L. Crawford, barrister of this place, and who is conducting the work of the crown in the present court, is to be named in the district court of the province, to fill the vacancy caused by the taking of Judge Mitchell.

The appointment has not as yet been gazetted, although it is practically an assured fact, and Mr. Crawford is receiving the congratulations of his many friends. He is a man just past the young man stage of life, and has been practicing his profession for a number of years, first in Aymer, Ontario, and in partnership with his father, and afterwards in the adjoining town of Tillsonburg, from which place he came to Red Deer in 1903. He has been a life long Liberal, and an energetic worker of the Red Deer Liberal association, being at the present time its first vice-president.

It is expected that Mr. Crawford will be moved to Macleod or Lethbridge, and his present judge going to Calgary district.

DECORATED GRAVES.

Livingston, South Africa, Nov. 14.—Hon. Rodolph Lemieux laid wreaths here today on the graves of Canadians who fell in the battle of Paardeburg ten years ago.

WILL PRESS NAVY GRANT

Government Program Will Not be Changed Because of Nationalist Victory.

WILL IGNORE M. GILBERT

French-Canadian Members Will Start Campaign of Quiet Personal Work.

WHAT WILL BORDEN DO?

Coalition With Nationalists Would be Very Distasteful to Many Conservatives.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—It is not likely that the Liberal defeat in Drummond and Arthabaska will have any immediate effect on the Government policy. The Nationalists, who confidently predicted that Mr. Gilbert's return would mean the abandonment of the navy scheme, will undoubtedly feel the naval appropriation in the estimates, but as though Mr. Gilbert had never been born.

What will happen most probably, though, is that a campaign of education will be started in Quebec with the least possible delay. Had the election in Drummond been held a couple of weeks later than it was, the result might have been somewhat different. Sentiment does not often triumph over reason when reason has had an opportunity to declare itself. The Liberals feel that had they done a little more work in Drummond the story of hate, murder, and sudden death in far lands might have been allowed to spread and flourish, and finally swing the result as they undoubtedly did.

Quiet Personal Work. Many members are likely to profit by the lesson in the immediate future. French-Canadian members whose constituencies are likely to be seriously affected by these same stories are preparing to counteract them by quiet, personal work among their electors. The same effect may be observed with reference to the question of reciprocity. Indeed a consultation of the electors on almost every subject will be a much more popular move, in the immediate future, at least, than it has been for some little time in the past.

The question of a possible alliance or fusion between Conservatives and Nationalists is one which is causing some speculation. In some quarters it is regarded as well within the bounds of possibility, in others it is laughed at as either impossible or as being such bad politics from the Conservative standpoint that Mr. Borden is most unlikely to commit himself to it. Indeed a consultation of the electors on almost every subject will be a much more popular move, in the immediate future, at least, than it has been for some little time in the past.

Against this others argue that a Liberal-Nationalist coalition campaign could be carried on against the Government without bringing the electors of the two parties too closely in contact. They maintain that such a coalition would go far towards the accomplishment of the "Down with Laurier" aim.

Granted, however, that the Conservatives came back to power on the shoulders of such a coalition, it is difficult to see just how they could retain Nationalist support, for were the latter to remain true to their sworn principles, they would be compelled to reject the Borden naval scheme, and its endorsement in any definite policy could result only in the most complete split between Mr. Borden and Mr. Laurier. Certainly the Conservatives would not dare to abandon their naval scheme to please the Nationalists.

Would Aid Third Party. All this presupposes the rise of a dominant third party in Quebec, a contingency that the present Government is not likely to allow without vigorous opposition. After all, it seems doubtful that the Nationalists can hope to accomplish great things, as long as the two political camps remain hostile to each other. There can at present be no parallel drawn between the Irish party at Westminster and the Nationalist in the Irish have at least the sympathy of the Liberals, whereas here it will have to be demonstrated that Mr. Bourassa is persons gait to the great majority of Mr. Borden's followers.

UNITED STATES NOT A REPUBLIC

As an illustration of the awkwardness of the system on which United States is governed, note the fact that while the country has gone overwhelmingly Democratic, the President and the Senate are still Republican.

In other words, the people having voted Democratic, have not a Democratic government, two vetoes still standing over the congress which they have elected.

At the present time the Republicans have a majority in the senate, counting the insurgents, of about twenty. When the states which have gone Democratic have elected their senators, the majority of the Senate will have become Democratic. But there will still be a Republican president in the chair, and an election which might displace him and substitute a Democrat does not take place for two years yet. Simultaneously with this election will come another election for congress. At this election the country might swing back to the Republican side. In such case, the Democratic party would have had a popular majority for two years without ever having had an out and out Democratic government.

The revolution of feeling in the United States at the recent elections is generally attributed to a popular disapproval of high tariff. In order to get the tariff lowered, the people have had to wait two years in order to elect a congress. They will now have to wait for another term until a senate is elected, and they then, if the president has the effrontery to veto, would have to wait another two years to elect a president, at which time they would have to elect a congress again and carry most of the states in order to be sure of the senate.

The recent returns show that the vast majority of the people are in favor of dynamizing the tariff wall and moving a long, long way toward free trade, but the men who saddled the high tariff on the country, have the benefit of a system which defeats the will of the people for a long time after it has been recorded.

A referendum would sound the death-knell of the predatory influence which has tied United States up to a robber tariff.

To call United States a republic is an absolute misnomer.

CONGDON DESERVED HIS VOTE OF THANKS

A man that can make words behave like Fred T. Congdon can should never be anywhere except in the service of the public.

Congdon's deliverance before the Canadian Club was one of the most remarkable that has been heard in this city for many a day, remarkable alike for its logic and its choice of language.

In a speech scarcely half an hour long, Congdon gave utterance to a vast amount of common sense, and he did not use any superlatives to do it. Some of the ideas brought out might almost be incorporated in the school readers as axioms.

Among other things Congdon pointed out that while it was within the power of legislators to make laws which could be used to settle questions of right between man and man, it was not within the power of any body of law-makers to frame a statute which would govern men's passions.

It might be possible, he said, to frame statutes designed to prohibit gambling, drinking, and licentiousness, but beyond the mere performance of the act was the passion, which was a personal matter controllable only by the man.

There is room for many an hour's serious thought on this one point alone.

In this country at the present time there seems to be a great desire on the part of some people to control the personal actions of some other people. The people who desire to do the controlling generally adopt the attitude that they themselves are free from the passions which drive the others to folly, and consequently they are qualified to regulate the others, who are bad people, and who should be regulated by law.

To a man who believes that morality can be controlled by law it never occurs that morality is more a matter of mental attitude than physical action.

A little more deep thinking on the part of the people who would enforce virtue by statute might lead to a better realization of the fundamental fact that the man who owns the passion within his subconscious self is the only individual in the world who can control it, and that the only law which can be applied with any hope of success in the law of charity, of love your neighbor.

Elbert Hubbard says: "To know all is to forgive all." The great disadvantage under which the reformers work is that they do not understand the passions which they wish to suppress. If they did the laws would not be directed towards suppression and repression. They would be directed toward creating conditions under which men could live more normal, more natural lives, free to develop a strength of character that could stand against the world, the flesh and the devil.

Congdon received a vote of thanks from the Canadian Club. He deserved it for this one idea, and a vote of thanks each for half a dozen others quite as good.

PROTECTION AND THE FARMER

In the Canadian home of protection, Toronto, they accept some very crude statements in support of the pet theory.

Here is one from the Toronto News. Gaze off it:

"If continental free trade would seriously reduce the cost of living in the United States, a necessary result would be lower prices for the products of Canadian and American farmers."

According to Editor Willison, the farmer is a beneficiary of the tariff.

In order to be, it would be necessary that his market price be within the control of the tariff.

What are the facts?

The great staples of the Canadian and United States farm, wheat, beef, etc., find their market in Great Britain and Europe.

If the fixing of the price were within the control of the tariff, the produce markets of Chicago, Winnipeg, Duluth and Minneapolis would not hang with breathless interest over the tape to see what Liverpool does. They would do as the maker of farm machinery does, arrange the price, and leave the problem of finding the money to pay it to the consumer.

The price of wheat, for instance, is fixed by the Liverpool price, less the cost of getting it there, and this is the price which the farmer receives whether the wheat he grows is consumed within ten miles of his field or ten thousand.

Protection does not raise the price of wheat. It does exactly the opposite. Protection sends ships one way empty. It places a barrier to trade which undertakes to make it impossible for the country to buy from the people to whom it sells. The ships which go laden with wheat cannot come back laden with the products of the other country because the tariff will not let them. The farmer who ships the wheat pays the cost of the ship's trip over with the load and back empty. This exaction is paid on every bushel of wheat grown, whether the wheat be consumed in London or Okotoks.

MR. BORDEN'S NARROW VIEW

From the Hamilton Herald (Ind.)

Mr. Borden's comments on the result of the Drummond-Arthabaska election smack of the party politician rather than the statesman. One would suppose that a man of Mr. Borden's caliber would have had something to say that would be worth hearing about the dangerous currents of racial sentiment and political prejudice which the election returns revealed; but the vision of the Conservative leader appears to be obscured by the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has suffered a defeat, and his exultation over this humiliation of the Liberal leader appears to prevent him from giving thought to the broader significance of the result.

A GLARING INSTANCE

From the Windsor Record

The representative of the Toronto Star stumbled on an illustration of the reason for the inefficiency of some of the schools in Essex. A vacancy occurred in a school about ten miles from Windsor, and a girl without qualifications whatever applied for the position, offering her services at $250 a year. A qualified teacher asked $350, and the trustees deliberately and for the sake of saving the tax charge of their children. Much has been heard there could be little conditions in Quebec, but surely there could be little down there that is worse than this. Here is a deliberate contempt for the provisions of the school act that if true should bring on that school board the punishment they deserve. If they had to pay that teacher's salary out of their own pockets, as they can be made to do, there would be no sympathy for them.

PRESIDENT BRAGA IS INTERESTING FIGURE Lives Very Simple Life and Has Confidence of Whole Portuguese People.

A Lisbon correspondent of a London paper writes:

The most interesting man in Portugal at the present moment is the new President Braga, who may be said without exaggeration to be the father, not only of this revolution, but of that of Brazil, having by his teaching as Professor of History and Philosophy prepared the ground for both movements. He is a quiet pleasant, and extremely modest grey-haired man of 67, whose unassuming manners may be inferred from the fact that after being elected the first President of the Portuguese Republic he returned home as usual in a second-class compartment to the unpretentious little house which he occupies in the suburbs, quietly receiving the congratulations of his richest and humblest friends and deprecatingly acknowledging the frantic ovations of his fellow-passengers.

Senor Braga, as may be imagined had not many spare moments, but he was kind enough to devote a few minutes to a message for the English-speaking people. He particularly desired it to be understood that the revolution had no military or personal aims, but, like those of Brazil and Turkey, was purely the outcome of philosophical ideas. The Braganza dynasty had failed to keep abreast of modern progress, and had done nothing to render the people master of their own destinies.

This revolution, he said, like the two preceding ones, was based on the emancipation of the popular sentiment and aimed at the complete realization of civil life, untrammelled by religious or clerical dominations. One means by which the late dynasty had endeavored to maintain its position was continually to menace the people with British intervention in order to crush the popular sentiment as if the ancient alliance of the two nations were one between the dynasties and not between the two peoples. He believed the British people would understand and sympathize with their struggle in the cause of progress.

New President and Old Umbrella
A modest room in the unimposing Hotel Central, in the Faubourg Montmartre, is now the headquarters of Senor Magalhães-Lima, the official representative in France of the new Portuguese Republic in Paris.

"Braga," said Senor Lima to me, "is the Victor Hugo of Portugal. In literature he stands supreme. The more than 130 volumes he has already published deal with nearly every great topic of interest to us. Philosopher, poet, romancer, historian, statistician, humanitarian, passionate Socialist, he is a revolutionary from conviction. The whole nation respects him, for the whole nation believes in his disinterestedness and his absolute integrity, devotion to duty and enlightened patriotism."

"Down in 1843, in the island of St. Michael, one of the Azores, his childhood was one of extreme poverty. While yet a boy he began to earn his own living and even to help to support his parents. His natural leaning towards letters drew him into a printing office, and he felt himself passing rich when taken on as a compositor."

"He has always lived modestly, economically, almost poorly, in absolute accord with his Socialist principles. His whole income consists of what he earns as a professor of sociology in Lisbon University, that is 2400 a year. Out of this he has saved about £200."

"He has never taken a cab, but all ways walks. He had always steadily refused to take payment for his books, believing in art for art's sake."

"The little fact is now without any other human, for some years ago Senor Braga had the extreme sorrow of his life in the loss from consumption of his wife in a few months of each of his two children. Maria Graça, his daughter, and Theophila, his only son."

"Thirty-five years ago he began his great republican campaign and delivered in all over 2000 lectures in all parts of the country. He is a remarkably eloquent man with a forceful and telling manner of speaking."

"One article of his personal attire has become a byword in Portugal: it is a ready-looking umbrella with a crook handle, which he invariably carries under his left arm."

"It is not too much to say Braga is a respect, confidence and admiration of the whole of Portugal, from the King down to the humblest cottager. Don Carlos, though he knew—some better—Braga's sentiments, openly showed the high opinion he held of him, and when Braga was Secretary of the Royal Academy, the avowed revolutionary and the monarch whose son he was to help to dispose, were often seen in amiable conversation. But Braga, though invited, never entered the Royal palace."

DOG DIES AND MASTER LIVES

Los Angeles, Nov. 14.—Railroad locating, even at this late period, may have its perils, according to H. Sutton and H. D. Barker, members of the outfit under Engineer C. K. Rankin, who is locating the survey for the San Diego & Arizona Railroad.

The two young men have been staying at the "Hollenbeck" while here on a vacation, one following very shortly on the heels of the other, a member of their party, the cook, who became lost in the mountains near the Mexican border and wandered for three days. Finally he collapsed and was rescued just in time to save his life.

"We were working through the district near Campo, the last outpost of humanity in that vicinity," said Sutton. "When orders came to move farther along into the wilderness of mountains and mosquito. The young man who was started on the move, a long line of pack mules and a few horses carried the provisions, and a big supply of water, which is the most valuable thing in the entire country. The cook, Big Ben, as he was called, who had arrived only several weeks previous from San Francisco, and was unfamiliar with mountains of any kind except as seen from a car window, twisted along toward the rear. Walking was what he wanted to do, but when very tired he decided to begin to lag, and finally decided to turn about and retrace his way back to camp and get a horse, since walking was proving too arduous. This was the last heard of the cook for seventy hours. The country is one of many small ponds, dozens of canyons and no trails that have ever been traversed by man."

"Ben wandered on into a small canyon and then back into another, losing himself completely. When he did not appear later in the day search was started. He was not located and it was only on the third day that one of the ranchers came across him, a mass of hair torn from his inseparable companion, an Irish terrier. This pointed towards a canyon and nearly at the head of it the cook was found with a vestige of life remaining, his tongue swollen from lack of water. Lying across one arm was the dead body of his terrier. Every possible thing was done for the cook, but he died. The terrier, however, became national and in a week had entirely recovered from his adventure."

SHUT IN HUMIDOR VAULT

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Fred Rosenthal, a cigar clerk at 150 Monroe street, has always loved the aroma of a good cigar, and especially of the imported variety, but the aroma of four million cigars which he was forced to inhale for two hours has completely cured him of his fancy.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Rosenthal entered a new steel vault holding four million cigars, which the H. M. Schermerhorn Company had recently installed in its store. As he stepped within the automatic lock sprang, closing the heavy double doors, and Rosenthal saw hope but to wait until the lock would automatically open at 8 the next morning.

In the meantime the patent humidor doors which are installed in the vault to keep the cigars moist, worked over-time, and the air-tight compartment with the strong, damp fumes of the Havanas.

Rosenthal knocked on the door, but to no avail, and the fumes began to make his head spin round like a top. Because of the confusion on the first floor, when the afternoon trade was at its height, no one paid any attention to the young man's knocks.

It was only at 4:30, two hours later, when Charles Link, the chief clerk, journeyed to the vault to procure a particular brand of imported "cigars," that he found the door locked and heard a faint noise within. He hurriedly unlocked the combination.

Forth stumbled Rosenthal, pallid and pale, and he staggered as if in a drunken stupor. After a couple of hours' rest on a couch in the office he was able to again resume his work, but feeling weak and faint. And now the other clerks are kidding him and saying:

"Oh, you imported aroma."

FORMER LORD MAYOR'S COCKTAIL

New York World
"Sir William Trevelyan, former lord mayor of London, found many things to like during his short visit to this country. But one thing that particularly pleased him was an experience in Maine when he was unable to get a cocktail in a buffet car. And get a cocktail in a buffet car," he remarked, while grieving over the disaster, "when a man who likes a drink and feels he should not." It puzzled him to think where we got this queer notion."

The word "cocktail" is unfortunate in not being familiar with the name of this country. America, and every of this country, owe much to the English people. They really do emanate from England. It was because the early Puritans objected to having some of their private affairs regulated by their public life that they crossed the Atlantic. By force of their example ever since, their followers have been regulating other people's private affairs."

If it had not been for an old nurse borrowed from England, Sir William would probably have had his cocktail in Maine, and to that extent thought better of America.

"MY WIFE'S FAMILY"

It was to a capacity house that Miss Leah Stoddard and her company opened the Grand Opera House for the season of 1910-11 last evening with the pleasing comedy, "My Wife's Family," a play that proves a continual surprise to the audience, with its mix-ups, queer situations and droll comedy throughout.

Ben Ross, as Doc Knott, the dispenser of everything from corn plaster, up and down, made a decided hit with his comedy. Continued efforts to readjust the domestic troubles of "My Wife's Family," and his overpowering desire for the "cats" proved irresistible. He was a provoker of mirth whenever he appeared on the stage.

Jack Gay (Joseph Ward), the husband of "my wife," whose sincerity, doubted by his mother-in-law, is the centre round which the play revolves. His efforts to get rid of his wife, mother, with the results makes up what is a most laughable and entertaining plot.

The company is a clever one and carries the face through to the final curtain in finished style. Miss Leah Stoddard and Miss Maude Barron as "my wife" and "my wife's mother," respectively, played their parts exceptionally well.—London Free Press.

"THE TRAVELLING SALESMAN"

Will be in town on Thursday, Friday, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon at the Empire Theatre. He carries as his special line wit, humor, good comedy, good cheer for every one, take the opportunity to see him. The request for his appearance were so numerous that there was no other way out of it, but to have appear at his earliest convenience, so he will be at the Empire Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, also Saturday afternoon, Nov. 17, 18, 19. This will positively be his last visit to Edmonton, so any wanting to see him had better note the date of his arrival.

Monday matinee at the Lyceum will see the first performance of the Telephone Girl, the Musical comedy that has been known at the Casino, New York, and which made Louis Mann famous.

The Telephone Girl is one of the old plays of musical plays that has a real plot as well as catchy music and unique scenic effects. The first act opens with a central office in full operation in which the plot is worked out. Miss Marjorie Lake as Estelle, a telephone girl, has the role in which she makes the most of, and in which she has several new songs; also a duet with Mr. Clifford, who shows his great versatility once more.

In this bill he plays a juvenile lead and does it just as well as he does comedy. "nuff said." Max Adams, Hans Nix the inspector has the leading comedy role which seems to fit him to perfection and will no doubt make this capable actor more popular than ever. Miss Florence Chapman as Shuffles, a messenger boy, will be seen in an entirely different character that of a boy, and one that she plays to the limit. Mr. Ed. Harrington has the part of an old washer, one in which he shows himself in an entirely new light, he also has a novelty song with the girls; taken at its face, the Telephone Girl is very well cast, and will be given a thorough production word for word, except that the chorus will not be as large as the general run of road shows. Mr. Lewis presents the biggest business this week the Lyceum has ever done, and says see this show and you will come again.

RECTOR DIES AS SERVICE BEGINS

Rev. David Jones, Rector of Strathcona Church, Died Suddenly Yesterday Morning.

Rev. David Jones, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Strathcona, died very suddenly yesterday morning at his home, while his congregation was engaged in worship in the Church.

Mr. Jones was born near Cardiff, Wales, and came to this country five years ago to begin work in the diocese of Calgary. After holding a few minor positions he was finally appointed to the mining town of Taber, where he speedily built up a thriving congregation, which had become self-supporting before he left in the summer of this year.

In August last he was unanimously elected by the congregation of Holy Trinity, Strathcona, to succeed Rev. W. R. George and having decided to accept the appointment, took up the work in August last.

Mr. Jones has been in delicate health for many years but it was believed by his friends that a course of treatment recently undergone had stayed the progress of the disease.

This is the third occasion on which the Church of England in this province has lost one of her leading men in each case the death was unexpected and twice has taken place while the congregation was gathered in the Church.

The Bishop has been communicated with at Olds and he will make final arrangements for the funeral of which the date has not yet been set.

10 YEARS FOR CLARK WOODS

Chief Justice Harvey Sentenced Youth Convicted on Manslaughter Charge.

Red Deer, Nov. 14.—Chief Justice Harvey this morning sentenced Clark Woods, convicted of manslaughter, to ten years in the Edmonton penitentiary. The judge remarked that on account of the prisoner's youth he would be lenient with him; that there was no doubt but what he had intended to hurt Murray severely, and punishment must follow. In the penitentiary he would have a chance to learn a useful trade, and as he would be a young man when discharged, he should be a better man for the experience.

Chief Justice Harvey also handed out the following sentences for the criminal cases tried at this session: A. L. Greenberg, robbery, five years; Byron Winters, robbery, five years; Henry Norwest, two charges of forgery and uttering, two years on each charge to run concurrently; W. Campbell, theft, two years; P. Murphy, charged with stealing a store, was acquitted, as also was W. Perk, accused of horse stealing. Monaghan and Nelson, two of the lads accused of theft from a store at Pine Lake, got three years each, while Larkwell and Hodgkinson were released on suspended sentence as they have homes in the vicinity and furnished a bond of $5,000 for their good conduct. George Thompson received two years for obtaining goods from R. C. Brumpton under false pretences. He is yet to be tried on the charge of forging and uttering.

Winipeg, Nov. 14.—F. R. Gallagher, of Spear River, who has been confined to his home ever since last July when he received a severe kick in a football game, died Saturday night of heart failure, as the direct cause of the accident. His death was not a surprise to his friends. He was 23 years of age.

SIX ARE KILLED
Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 14.—A collision took place yesterday here between a street car of the Kalamazoo city lines and a Michigan Central west bound train in which six persons were killed, twenty-one injured, of whom number four are expected to die. All those injured were passengers on the street car. None of the passengers on the train were harmed.

Aviation.
There are about 800 aeroplanes in France, 700 of which have been made in the last ten months.

In the province of Brandenburg, Germany, there is a series of times for aviators flying over towns and villages, the maximum fine being $15. Fines are not imposed, however, on steerable balloons.

An interesting feature in the patent development of the year in Great Britain was the number of applications filed in the field of aeronomy, being more than three times the number filed during the preceding year.

English Etchings.
Nearly one-fifth of the deaths in England occur in public institutions.

Nearly two-thirds of the crime in London is perpetrated between 2 p.m. on Saturdays and 9 a.m. on Mondays.

Prison ratios of England give 514 offences (foot weight) for every 100,000 doing hard labor, but only 46.8 offences in the case of a prisoner doing light labor.

Tales of Cities.
Tokyo, the capital of Japan, covers thirty square miles, has 530,000 houses and 2,000,000 population.

Bucharest is a city of 300,000 people, covering a great territory. But on its traction lines there run only 133 horse cars and ten electric cars.

Tuberculosis is the greatest scourge of overcrowded Vienna. Seventy persons in 10,000 die from this disease in the working class quarter of the city as compared with sixteen in the other districts.

A want ad in the Daily Capital will if repeated a few times and a long hunt for work, put "pay-day" on your calendar again.

TO REDUCE CABLE RATES

Plans are Being Formulated to Reduce Rates One-half

New York, Nov. 14.—An inquiry having been made of Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Commercial Cable Company and the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, as to the reasons of a pending reduction in cable rates, Mr. Mackay said:

"The Commercial Cable company has been at work for some time past in formulating a plan whereby the rates for cablegrams sent by the general public, in other words, cablegrams in plain language, as distinguished from code language, be reduced about one-half."

"That plan has now been worked out, and inasmuch as it will require the co-operation of the telegraph lines in Europe, where the governments exercise the right of censorship, it is necessary that the governments be necessary."

"At present the cable rate is twenty-five cents for five letters. The proposed plan is to charge twelve and a half cents for every five letters in that class of cablegrams."

"We have found by careful investigation and examination of a great number of cable messages that plain language messages only five letters to the word, and hence if we charge only twelve and a half cents for five letters, the cost of a cablegram being counted as though the whole cablegram was one word, the result would be that the public sending cablegrams would pay but one-half of what it now pays for the same."

"It is a part of the plan that these reduced rates messages will be subject to a higher rate. We hope to be able to put this plan into operation in a short time, it being necessary to make the necessary arrangements with the European governments."

"I would add that this new mode of charging for cable messages will be of decided advantage also to the business public which uses a code."

PROVISIONAL SCHOOL OF INFANTRY
Col. Sergt. Farnsworth and Sergt. Instructor George arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of opening the Provisional School of Infantry in the Armories of the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers on Monday evening.

The practical work will be taken by Col. Sergt. Farnsworth and Sergt. Instructor George and will include squad drill, rifle and fire exercises, skirmishing, signals and scouting, company drill, battalion drill and ceremonial.

The lectures will be given by Lt. Col. Crinkshaw and Capt. Mackie and will include interior company theory, drill, duties, discipline, drill, bayonet, attack and defence, advance and rear guards, marches and outposts, and orders.

The school will continue until December 15th, and promises to be a very interesting one.

SUNDAY MEETING
The Pleasant Sunday afternoon meeting at the Orpheum Theatre was fairly well attended. Mr. Wm. McLaughlin gave an inspiring temperance lecture on Personal Responsibility in relation to the Temperance movement. Mr. J. C. Thomas of Winnipeg sang "The Promise of Life."

A violin and piano duo by members of the orchestra, Mr. D. T. Dlayne occupied the chair.

On Sunday next the services will be resumed at 4 o'clock when the Rev. J. E. Houghton, B.A., of McDougall Methodist Church will be the speaker. Mr. R. E. Randall will sing and the orchestra will play selections at 4 o'clock prompt.

CONMEE COMING.
Will Be in City to Boost Alberta Southern Pacific Railway Co.

Calgary, Nov. 14.—In the interests of the Alberta Southern Pacific Railway company, James Conmee, M.P., of Port Arthur, is here, in route to Edmonton, where he will probably interview the government respecting the project.

The Alberta Southern Pacific Railway company's projected route is north and south of Burnsville on the Crow's Nest line. The coal fields of the south Kootenay Pass will be touched by the southern line, while the northern section will run to Calgary and Edmonton through the foothills.

Caustic Wit.
The very young travelling salesman was registering at the village hotel.
"I want a room with running water," he remarked.
"Runnin' water?" cackled the landlord: "what do you want to do, mister—practise indoor trout fishing?"

DOG ANGLER IS THE PRIDE OF OKLAHOMA

Pointer's Favorite Pastime is Catching Minnows—Masters Virtue of Silence.

Tahlequah, Okla., Nov. 14.—Inglis Morris, of this place, owns a brown pointer dog that would delight any boy that ever found pleasure in going fishing. The dog's name is Jack, and Jack Morris is the happiest dog in Oklahoma. At the rear of his master's home is a hole spring-fed stream almost within reach of the kitchen door. There are riffles and then pools and then more riffles and then pools and watercress in this little stream. When Jack isn't sleeping on the blue grass lawn he is playing in the little stream in the back yard. Here is how he plays.

Scalably, and stepping as lightly as if he were walking on eggs, Jack scolds into the water. He gazes intently at the bottom, fretted with sunshine, and darkened occasionally by a swift, shadow-like form that glides into sight and then disappears under a flat stone or into a crevice. But Jack is usually swifter than the seeming shadow. With a quick dash he plants his foot upon the shadow and a moment later trots ashore with a wriggling crawfish in his mouth. Jack lays the crawfish gently on the ground and then resumes his piscatorial pursuits. He hunts small dollar-sized minnows just as eagerly as he does crawfish, but with less success, because of their greater swiftness.

How the Dog Fishes.
Jack has become an expert in his sport. There is no doubt that he has applied reason to the problem, for he has encountered. Where the bed of the stream has lowest, hiding places, Jack fishes only a little while. But where there are all kinds of miniature caverns founded by the roots of sand and with his tail wagging from side to side, he searches for the slightest movement. He watches for the slightest movement. He watches for the slightest movement. He watches for the slightest movement.

Fun for the Children.
Morris goes fishing frequently in the larger streams and Jack always goes along. It would be hard to tell which has the more fun. Morris catches the fish and Jack catches the fun. In warm weather Jack spends hours at a time loitering along the little stream in his master's yard, watching minnows and crawfish.

Poor Old College
The Interprovincial week-end series was disappointing, and even though the winter weather conditions could hardly have been worse, not one of the teams played real football, loose catching, and poor handling of the leather accounting for the big scores that were totted.

McGill swamped Ottawa College 20 to 0, on a field that was inches deep in mud, while Varsity almost trebled the score on Queen's the final tally being 35 to 9.

Dundas repeated in the O. R. F. U. defeating St. Michael's on the latter's field and qualifying for the Dominion finals, after a terrific encounter.

The Valley Town players are certainly coming fast, and even though they were minus several of last year's crack halves, the weight of their line, and their splendid team work was sufficient to carry them to victory.

T. A. A. C. are also playing good ball, hardly of the same class as the Dundas team though a game between them would not entitle either team to the odds.

The Hamilton Alerts
Varsity capped a second championship when the seconds defeated the R. M. C. Cadets on Varsity field Saturday morning, 16 to 8.

The Varsity III A aggregation is almost sure of its league, and the Toronto University will have the unique distinction of winning three championships in the same season.

Montreal Seconds will probably be shut out in the Quebec Union, but the winners of this league will not stand for a minute against the Hamilton Alerts.

The Eastern football being much rarer than the finished article provided in Hamilton and Toronto.

T.A.A.C. WON THE O.R.F.U. HONOURS

Will Now Meet Varsity Next Saturday—The Winners Play Tigers for Grey Cup.

Dundas, Ont., Nov. 14.—T.A.A.C. and Dundas played the final game here yesterday evening for O.R.F.U. championship, which went in the end to T.A.A.C. by a score of eleven to seven.

There was no score in the first quarter. In the second, Toronto scored five points on a touch of two for Dundas. This was repeated in the third quarter, which ended—Toronto 10, Dundas 7.

Dundas added three to its score in the last quarter and Toronto one, making the final score as given above.

This victory gives Toronto Amateur Athletic club the O.R.F.U. championship, and the team will meet Toronto University in the semi-finals for the Canadian championship on Nov. 19, and the winner will play "Tigers" in Hamilton's week later for the final game for the Canadian honours.

CUBS WILL TRY NEW SCHEME

Frank Chance Will Have Recruits Report at His Ranch in December

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Frank Chance realizes that he must build up a new Cub machine in order to keep the Chicago National League team up to the high level that it has maintained for a number of years. There are parts that must be strengthened, and that means that new men must be taken to the place of veterans and team work be perfected and built up, so that no matter what the strain may be, each cog will run evenly and do its appointed work.

The peevish leader has, therefore, evolved a scheme for winter training quarters, and if all goes well, will send the capability of his various recruits before the other clubs even start their spring practice.

The present plan is to establish a winter school on a thirteen-acre tract of land near Chance's home at Glenora, Cal.

The Chicago manager has been angling for this tract for some time, and his original intention was to erect a resort on it for the purpose of irrigating his ranch, but he later became imbued with the idea of using it for a winter practice ground.

Frank Chance, the all-around ability of a new man is very often impossible to discover in the limited period of a spring training trip.

Some men get into condition slowly and make a poor showing in comparison with others, who play like whirlwinds in practice, only to slump when they commence to run up against big league ball.

The Chicago leader believes that with all winter to experiment in he can sort the sheep from the goats, and be ready to open the season under a full head of steam.

He intends to have at least thirteen of his youngsters rooming at the ranch in the California sunshine by December 1st, and Kirwin, Sater, Ball, Clark, Tony, Cooney, Doyle, Fisher, Sewall, Angmeier, Clarke, Cook, and Ingerson are the recruits who are expected to report for practice.

The only regular schedule calls for a gathering at West Baden about March 1st, followed, by some time spent at New Orleans and various exhibition contests on the way home.

Whether the new scheme would change the usual plan is not known, but, at any rate, Chance is going to make strenuous efforts to lead a winning team on the diamond next year.

MONTREAL LOSES TO OTTAWA

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Montreal Rugby followers got a rude surprise today when the home team was beaten by Ottawa by a score of 14 to 9.

Supporters of the team lost considerable coin as the Frenchmen appeared unbeaten on their own grounds, and were backed freely by their admirers.

Ottawa led all the way, though Montreal came along with a rush in the third quarter, when they piled up six of the nine points scored.

HURRAH FOR YALE.

Princeton N.J., Nov. 14.—Princeton lost to Yale yesterday, five to three, and also lost its opportunity to go through the football season without defeat, and possibly without being scored upon. The team lacked aggressiveness, a characteristic so pronounced in previous Tiger elevens, and to that lack is ascribed the defeat.

Princeton had no excuse to offer. The team was outplayed in every department with the possible exception of kicking.

MOOSE FEARS LUCAS

Moose Baxter, the ex-Edmonton ball player, thinks it is all off with the proposed International League. Moose knows Baxter, Helena, and Great Falls is a club that has been home. Moose says that J. J. McCloskey and W. H. Lucas organizing their United Association the Alberta cities have lost their grip on the Montana towns. Moose is well known in Butte, and when the Alberta circuit is to act, Moose is of the opinion that the proposed Montana-Alberta circuit would have made an even better one than the one J. J. McCloskey and Lucas are organizing—Albertan.

WINNIPEG HAS IDEAL GROUNDS

Amateur Athletic Club of this City Invests $5000 for a Permanent Home

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—At last, Winnipeg is to have an ideal ground, which will be devoted solely to amateur sport. It was announced some time ago that the negotiation of a lease pending to the purchase of the Spruile estate, situated in North Winnipeg, and this morning the property passed into the hands of the Winnipeg Amateur Athletic Association. The price paid was $5000.

The new athletic property consists of fifteen acres running from Main street to the river bank, and being situated just half a mile from the North Winnipeg car barns.

Being situated in parts with fine oak trees, so rare in Western Canada, and, in fact, it will be an ideal location for the pursuit of outdoor pastimes.

A new and permanent home for Winnipeg athletics is located half a mile north of the North Winnipeg car barns. At the present time the street railway does not run to the property, but assurances have been given that the line will be extended in the spring.

It will then be possible to reach the grounds from the corner of Portage avenue and Main street in about twenty minutes.

It is the intention of the association to use the grounds for all the sports of the spring and to lay out fields for lacrosse, baseball, football and other sports.

A handsome brick building situated on the property will be utilized for a club house. It is finished in hard wood and it is stated that very little money will have to be expended to turn it into splendid quarters.

SOUTH AFRICANS WON

McKenzie, Nov. 14.—South African cricketers defeated the South Australians today by 288 runs. The result of the match was a surprise to cricket experts.

Mr. Congdon, the Englishman, has been aroused over the turn, which is now certain to be a success.

NOT FOR THE ESKIMOS

The Hamilton Spectator says: "Varsity is full of trick plays. On Saturday against Queen's they worked one little stunt that resulted in a good gain. Maynard sat down on the ground on the extreme right of the field, apparently fixing a shoe lace. Play started with him in this position, with the Queen's outside wing laboring under the impression that the Varsity halfback was out of the way. To his surprise Foulds shot the ball to Maynard and the latter was off for a nice run."

This is the very identical play that Deacon White wished the Eskimos to practice, but somehow or other, it was over-looked. The Deak is there with the head piece.

OWEN SAWERS

Owen Sawers, who was the best half back that ever donned a Calgary Tiger uniform, is busily engaged in the English game out on the Coast. In a team picked from all the Vancouver league teams Owen was selected as a third overline back. N. Sawers is on the half-time.

DOC. GIBSON ENTERTAINS

A large number of the Tiger rugby club members spent a very pleasant time last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gibson. Amongst those present were Woods, Priestley, Bacon, Lindler, N. White, R. White, Whitaker, Dobbie, Madden, Ross, Fitzgerald, McLean, J. Johnson, P. Johnston, C. Clarke, G. Clarke, McFarlane, Gleason.

The boys had a good time and were very appreciative of the reception given them by "Doc" and Mrs. Gibson. Speeches were given by Doc. Gibson, Manager Ross, Bill Dobbie and See. Whitaker—Albertan.

GOULDING BEATS WEBB.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14.—George Goulding, of the Central Y. M. C. A. champion Canadian walker, met Ernest Webb, of the H. H. Hill Harriers, London, England, the English champion, in a seven-mile walk at the Toronto armory last night.

The Canadian won easily in 22:07. He lapped Webb in the fourth mile and at the finish was 200 yards ahead.

TOMMY BURNS BUYS

The city of Calgary is getting something out of Tommy Burns, ex-world champion, besides a pleasant smile. Tommy, not content with buying a half interest in Jimmy Seville's genteel furnishings store, has now purchased 50 feet on Eighth Avenue W. at a cost of $6000.

Wonder if Tommy could not be coaxed up to Edmonton? He sounds like ready money.

CANADIAN CLUB

F. T. Congdon, the member of parliament for the Yukon, in his address to the Canadian Club at a luncheon given in his honor at the King Edward Hotel on Saturday spoke of the essential qualities composed in the make up of the ideal and successful community. The luncheon was largely attended by members of the club, among whom were present many prominent citizens. W. A. Griestach, president of the club, presided.

Mr. Congdon at first referred to the noticeable growth and prosperity of Edmonton, and the pleasure he experienced on each visit to this city. He expressed the prevalent opinion that the completion of the railways to the coast would be productive of unbounded benefit to this city and the great empire of the north.

A point in which the conventions of the old and new worlds differed was in regard to labor. In the old world those who indulged in honest and productive labor were looked down on in contempt by those of the aristocratic classes, who brought up their sons and daughters to the belief that it added to their dignity to remain from toil. In the new world, such sentiment did not exist and disapproval was shown by the imposition of the heaviest punishment on idleness. In the west the standard of labor was raised to a high level, and by such a service to humanity was rendered.

Mr. Congdon emphasized the necessity of such a view of life in the well conducted community.

"Labor," he said, "was once designed as a curse upon humanity, but it has turned out to be one of the greatest blessings."

"One of the greatest dangers in the west," said the speaker entering a different channel, "is the accumulation of wealth without the corresponding labor which produces it, from which socialistic and other abnormal ideas evolve, and the accumulation of wealth by young men too early in life."

Mr. Congdon paid particular attention to the latter point, stating that it had the effect of causing other young men less fortunate to attempt to follow the pace set by their wealthy companions to their own detriment and ultimate disfigurement, besides injuring the future welfare of the young men who have acquired wealth at an immature age.

"We are entering a spendthrift age, an age of worthlessness," said Mr. Congdon. "A caution of affairs in human life is being introduced which must be improved upon, and each man in the community must exert every effort to alter conditions."

A matter which was essential to the success and good reputation of the community was the keeping at a low standard, as far as possible, the mortality rate. No better advertisement could be imagined for a city than a low mortality rate.

Conditions should be such to not permit of an abnormal death rate. Slums should not be allowed to exist.

"There is still the possibility in the west, although there is no reason for the materialization of it, for the reproduction of the slums of London, New York and other large centres in the west," said Mr. Congdon.

Justice was a quality which must exist in every well governed community, and the speaker deplored the tendency of many judges to ignore the true principles of that noble element. He was glad to see that, that in Canada conditions as regards justice were so like those existing in the United States.

The ability to stand up for one's rights was another essential quality, and Mr. Congdon referred to the Englishman, in whom that characteristic was one of his predominant qualities.

"There will not hesitate at making a scene in the securing of their rights," said the speaker, "and for instance if an Englishman thinks a cabman is overcharging him he is prepared to pay three or four times the amount under dispute. Of that Englishman a great German philosopher once said: 'In him lives Old England.'"

WANTED—CLOTHING AND BEDDING

For the Children's Shelter

The Children's Shelter at 47 Cameron Street makes request to the ladies of Edmonton for contributions of bed linen, blankets, quilts and children's clothing of every kind for infants under one year to sixteen years of age.

There are not blankets enough for the little beds when the children are taken a further drop, as it is found to do, and there is not a sufficient quantity of clothing to go around—the children when a change of clothing is desirable and necessary.

The utter helplessness of a little homeless child coupled with its responsiveness to kindness, its gratitude and love, make stronger appeal to the human heart than perhaps any other form of charity work. There are the children here who are in the warmer garments for the cold of winter.

If you will be good enough to phone No. 2772, Mr. Alex. McLeod, K.C., President of the Children's Shelter, arrangements will be made at once whereby any donation, including you may wish to give to the Children's Shelter, will be called for and taken to that home. Contributions of cash will be gladly received and acknowledged by Mr. Stuart or Mr. T. J. Collisson who is treasurer of the Society.
